Canadian Annual Derivatives Conference kicks off in Québec City

10/20/2015

Montréal Exchange event welcomes derivatives industry professionals from around the world

October 20, 2015 (MONTRÉAL) – Montréal Exchange Inc. (MX) is hosting the 16th Canadian Annual Derivatives Conference (CADC), a two-day event beginning today in Québec City. CADC, Canada's premier derivatives conference, attracts attendees from across the broad spectrum of MX stakeholders including trading and clearing clients, risk experts and technology and compliance professionals.

"Year after year, CADC provides a forum for the key players in our industry to engage in constructive dialogue on current issues and trends," said Alain Miquelon, President and CEO, Montréal Exchange and Group Head of Derivatives, TMX Group. "The growth of this event in popularity and stature is a testament to the strength of the collaborative spirit within the Canadian derivatives industry."

Highlights in this year's program include a headline panel featuring economists from Canada's leading six banks and panel discussions exploring Canadian and global perspectives on important issues and topics within the industry such as hedge fund investing, synthetic financing opportunities, sophisticated options strategies, and investing and risk management strategies in pension planning.
