NIRI-NY Professional Development

Discussion and Q&A Session with Bina Thompson – the former President of NIRI and NIRI's New York Chapter – on her role at Colgate Palmolive, how she got her start in IR and advice she would have for students and entry level IR professionals.

Free, members-only program for NIRI members and Fordham students

This event will be co-hosted with Fordham University's Graduate School of Business Administration. Fordham has launched a Master's Degree program in Investor Relations based at its Lincoln Center Campus. Styled after the popular TV Show "Inside the Actor's Studio", our moderator Chris Taylor will interview Bina about how Colgate manages its Investor Relations function and what advice she can share with her fellow NIRI-NY members and students. Audience participation will be encouraged. This is a unique opportunity to learn more about one of the most significant Investor Relations professionals in our business.

Bina Thompson is Senior Vice President, investor relations for Colgate-Palmolive. She is responsible for investor and financial relations as well as the publication of all financial communication. Prior to joining Colgate, Bina spent seven years at Cognex Corporation, a manufacturer of machine vision systems, where she held a variety of positions, including manager of investor relations and treasurer. In 1999, Colgate-Palmolive received IR magazine's Grand Prix award for Best Overall Investor Relations. She graduated from Harvard University with a bachelor's degree in English literature and received her M.B.A. from Babson College.

Chris Taylor is an EVP & MD at Ipreo, where he oversees the corporate global investor relations services and products offered to listed companies around the world from its offices in New York, London, Paris, Vienna and Tokyo. Chris came to Ipreo through the acquisition of CapitalBridge in February 2008, where he served as Managing Director, responsible for the global operations of the firm. Prior to joining CapitalBridge, Chris was a Senior Analyst at Morrow & Co.'s Stockwatch Department. Chris holds a B.S. in Management and Organization from the University of Connecticut.
