Fiji Airways to be first one world connect partner; talks progressing with other carriers from around the world

SYDNEY — one world is launching a new platform for linking up with the world’s premier airline alliance, enabling customers to enjoy more services and benefits across an even more extensive global network.

The first airline to join in the new capacity as a one world connect partner will be Fiji Airways.

A date will be announced at a later time for when Fiji Airways will start offering one world connect services and benefits (see below). In the meantime, it is business as usual.

one world connect is the first new membership platform unveiled by one world since the alliance was originally announced 20 years ago.

one world is in discussion with other carriers interested in participating in the program, from various parts of the world, including the Americas, Asia-Pacific and Europe.

Each one world connect partner will need to have a minimum of three one world members as its sponsors to be initiated into the program. The initial one world sponsors of Fiji Airways will be all four of one world’s founding members – American Airlines, British Airways, Cathay Pacific and Qantas. The Australian carrier will additionally mentor Fiji Airways through its one world connect implementation process.

American, Cathay Pacific and Qantas already codeshare and have frequent flyer links with Fiji Airways. British Airways and Fiji Airways are currently discussing areas for potential bilateral cooperation.

WHAT ONEWORLD CONNECT MEANS FOR CUSTOMERS

OneWorld connect partners will provide select alliance benefits to frequent flyers from any OneWorld member airline traveling on their flights, with a more extensive range of benefits offered with their OneWorld sponsors.

Customers with Emerald, Sapphire or Ruby status in any OneWorld member airline’s frequent flyer program will be able to use priority check-in desks, where available. Also, customers with Emerald or Sapphire status will be offered priority boarding.

The additional benefits offered by OneWorld connect partners to customers from their OneWorld sponsors and vice versa include:

- Through check-in of customers and their baggage for journeys, including connections between a connect carrier and any of its OneWorld sponsors.
- The ability to earn and redeem frequent flyer rewards and earn frequent flyer status points for eligible flights. (For customers from OneWorld connect airlines, these benefits depend on the OneWorld connect partner offering a frequent flyer program.)
- Access to select lounges at key airports for First or Business Class customers or those with eligible top-tier frequent flyer status.

Other select customer benefits may also be offered between OneWorld connect partners and their OneWorld sponsor airlines.

All OneWorld connect partners will make their networks available via Global Explorer, the round-the-world fare offered by all OneWorld members and select other airlines. Fiji Airways already does so.

All OneWorld connect partners will be required to maintain IATA IOSA safety certification.

OneWorld’s regular range of services and benefits remain in place for customers flying with the alliance’s full member airlines and their affiliates.

CEOS EXPLAIN ONEWORLD CONNECT’S STRATEGIC RATIONALE

“In the 20 years since one world’s conception in 1998, global airline alliances have expanded their breadth to the extent that they now account for 60 percent of total industry revenues and capacity globally, and 70 percent of revenues between the world’s top 125 business city airports. With most of the world’s biggest airlines already signed up, global airline alliances have reached maturity. In the future, one world will target as full members large airlines that have a significant presence in the alliance’s prime target market, providing connections between the world’s leading business centers. In the meantime, one world connect enables us to bring together more airlines to complement the alliance’s global leaders, so customers can earn rewards and feel recognized while traveling even further.”

— one world Governing Board Chairman Pekka Vauramo
CEO of Finnair

“one world’s current network of more than 1,000 destinations in 150 plus territories offers far-reaching global coverage, but there are still some regions where we would like to strengthen our presence further. With fewer potential new candidates available to recruit based on our established membership criteria, one world connect enables us to link up with other airlines whose networks are relevant to a subset of our members, who cannot meet one world’s full membership requirements at this stage or who are not interested in full membership at present. This enables us and them to offer our customers more services and benefits across an even wider network and strengthen our relationship going forward, with a streamlined and rapid path to full membership later on where it makes sense for all parties.”

— one world CEO Rob Gurney

“Fiji Airways is thrilled and honored to be the first one world connect partner globally. We are delighted to link Fiji, and the South Pacific, to the world’s premier airline alliance and deepen our relationships in particular with Qantas, American Airlines, British Airways and Cathay Pacific. This important step for our airline enables us to offer more services and benefits to our own customers along with the others in the one world family, to achieve a greater presence for our airline internationally, and to build on the in-bound tourism that is so vital to our home nation and our region.”

— Fiji Airways CEO Andre Viljeon
“As a oneworld founding member, it is great to see the alliance evolve to offer new ways to bring additional benefits to more customers and expand its joint network. We’ve worked closely with Fiji Airways for many years and are pleased to serve as its mentor as it comes on board as the first oneworld connect partner.”

— Qantas Group CEO Alan Joyce

“As another oneworld founding member, American Airlines is excited to be playing our part in this latest key development for what has become the world’s premier airline alliance, now making access to the South Pacific more attractive than ever.”

— American Airlines Chairman and CEO Doug Parker

“British Airways looks forward to developing links with Fiji Airways as a oneworld connect partner and sponsor, for the benefit of both our airlines, our customers and the wider oneworld community.”

— British Airways Chairman and CEO Alex Cruz

“Cathay Pacific was proud to play our part in founding oneworld 20 years ago and establishing it as the leading quality alliance – and we are proud today to be playing our part again in getting this exciting new membership platform oneworld connect off the ground, as a sponsor of our long-term codeshare partner Fiji Airways.”

— Cathay Pacific CEO Rupert Hogg
