

Volaris announces recovery to approximately 75% of its capacity for the month of September 2020

Mexico City, Mexico. August 19, 2020 – Volaris* (NYSE: VLRS and BMV: VOLAR), announces adjustments to its capacity as a result of the health emergency generated by the pandemic of the virus SARS-CoV2 (COVID-19).

During the month of September 2020, Volaris plans to operate approximately 75% of its capacity, as measured by available seat miles (ASMs), versus the originally published schedule, in response to a gradual recovery in demand for its air transportation services. This is equivalent to 86% of the capacity operated in September 2019.

This represents an increase in its capacity compared to the months of May, June, July and August 2020, where capacity operated represented 11%, 37%, 55% and 70% respectively of its total operations versus the itinerary originally published for those months.

Volaris continues to observe biosecurity and preventive measures for the safety and well-being of its passengers, crews and ground personnel.

The information included does not provide information on the company's future performance. Volaris' future performance depends on many factors and it cannot be inferred that any period's performance or its comparison year over year will be an indicator of a similar performance in the future.
