"Patty has extensive information technology experience with a track record of optimizing systems that are vital to the success of a global services business," said Schievelbein. "Her expertise in developing innovative applications to support corporate and commercial customers, honed during her nearly 15 years in the banking industry, will be invaluable to our company as we continue to grow our business and streamline our operations around the world."

"Patty's appointment adds to the strength and depth of the Brink's leadership team," Mr. Schievelbein continued. "Earlier this week we announced Mel Parker will join us as President of Brink's North America and I am confident that both of these inspirational leaders will play key roles in enhancing shareholder value."

"Building out the technology infrastructure to yield operational efficiencies while providing a framework for future growth is critical in a complex, global, customer-focused company like Brink's," said Ms. Watson. "I am excited by the opportunity to help Brink's deliver innovative solutions to its customers around the world and look forward to joining the Brink's team."
