This new specialized, fully integrated business unit will focus on bridging the gap between technology partners and U.S. public sector organizations, so they can achieve their individual missions. This will be accomplished through specialized and scalable aggregator solutions, including channel enablement, engineering services and support, industry-centric marketing, the Diversity

Alliance Program, and our Cloud Navigator, Enterprise Agreement Platform, Confirmed Stateside Support and Secure Software Factory offerings.

We are excited to bring TD SYNEX Public Sector to market, an always evolving, next-generation business unit with a combined 75 years of dedication and service to the U.S. public sector. Integrating the capabilities and U.S. public sector operations of the legacy organizations was a strategic move to leverage the strengths of three different, but complementary, entities into a single business unit that provides full project lifecycle delivery and support for vendors, channel partners and end-users across the entire U.S. public sector.

"This announcement comes at a time when the U.S. public sector is under pressure to deliver transformational change in terms of complying with modernization, cybersecurity and customer experience directives, while facing significant supply chain issues," said Reyna Thompson, senior vice president of public sector vendor management, TD SYNEX Public Sector. "The unprecedented combination of talent, resources, capabilities and global reach positions TD SYNEX Public Sector as the catalyst to connect the entire U.S. public sector, making it easier for technology companies, their channel partners and U.S. public sector end-users to do business, while helping to modernize and secure our nation's IT network."

Maintaining a complete technology portfolio from endpoint devices and edge computing to advanced integrated software solutions, TD SYNEX Public Sector will focus on the key domain areas that are shaping today's U.S. public sector, including data and analytics, cybersecurity, IT infrastructure and application lifecycle. It will offer an agile, flexible and innovative organization with the full support of the world's leading global distributor and solutions aggregator, TD SYNEX, including an additional reach back to more than 22,000 of the IT industry's best and brightest.

"Our people are industry-leading practitioners with decades of experience serving the U.S. public sector," said Eddie Franklin, senior vice president of public sector sales, TD SYNEX Public Sector. "We can now bring their collective insights to bear to best support our technology vendors and channel partners, as well as their customers across the federal, state, local and education landscape."
