Policy—Criteria for the Selection of a Compensation Committee Consultant

The Compensation Committee established the following criteria to be used when selecting or obtaining advice of a compensation consultant.

• Degree of independence

- > Financial independence—measured by dollar volume of other business conducted with Pfizer
- > Independent thinking—subjectively assessed by their known work as well as information gathered in screening interviews
- > Any other factors, as set forth in Pfizer's Compensation Committee Charter, as it may be amended from time to time

Familiarity with the business environment

- Knowledge of the pharmaceutical industry and general industry comparator companies
- > Specific knowledge of Pfizer, its strategic objectives and its culture, its senior management and the Board of Directors
- > Broad knowledge of market trends, investor preferences, proxy advisor policies, compensation risk-management, and any applicable regulations
- Public and investor relations
- Particular strengths and/or distinguishing characteristics including, but not limited to:
- Creative thinking
- > Strong sense of corporate governance
- Special areas of expertise
- Ability to establish rapport or dynamic presence with groups
- References from current clients where the consultant acts in an advisory role similar to the role desired by the Pfizer Compensation Committee
- Potential issues
- > Conflicts of interest with other clients or Committee members
- Degree of availability/accessibility
