BERLIN, June 1, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- MobileIron (NASDAQ: MOBL), the security backbone for the multi-cloud enterprise, announced a new professional services offering today: General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) Mobile Readiness Service. White paper: How EMM Helps with GDPR Compliance

GDPR makes employee privacy protection a legal requirement and a comprehensive and well-structured enterprise mobility management (EMM) program will be an important component of an enterprise's GDPR compliance framework. An enterprise that does not use EMM effectively will find it challenging to justify to authorities why it did not adopt state-of-the-art technical measures, as required by Article 32, to mitigate the risk of data loss.

"The introduction of mobile devices into the enterprise has increased the risk of unauthorized access to confidential data," said Matt Carter, Manager, Strategy and Advisory Consulting, MobileIron. "With the GDPR Mobile Readiness Service, we are applying our mobile security expertise as the world's leading standalone EMM provider to help our customers achieve GDPR compliance."

MobileIron GDPR Mobile Readiness Services include:

- Designing a customer-specific EMM policy to support GDPR
- Assessing the current deployment and configuration policies
- Recommending modifications to address gaps between compliant state and current state
- Providing policy compliance documentation
- Building an ongoing compliance monitoring program
