Adtalem Global Education Announces New Board Directors and Leadership Changes

2018-05-08

- Appoints Two Directors Who Increase Board Healthcare and Technology Expertise
- Names Group President of Medical and Healthcare Vertical
- Announces Planned Retirement of Chamberlain University President

CHICAGO--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Adtalem Global Education (NYSE: ATGE) today announced several leadership changes to both its Board of Directors and senior leadership team. Adtalem has appointed Georgette Kiser and Dr. Steven M. Altschuler, M.D. to its Board of Directors effective May 8, 2018. At the same time, Adtalem named board director Kathy Boden Holland as the Group President of its Medical and Healthcare vertical, currently Adtalem's largest business unit and a key focus for Adtalem's organic and inorganic growth strategy. Ms. Boden Holland resigned from the Adtalem Board of Directors and will begin the role leading the medical and healthcare vertical on May 9, 2018.

"We are pleased to have Ms. Kiser and Dr. Altschuler join the Adtalem Board, and value their expertise in technology, business, healthcare and medical education," said James D. White, Adtalem's Board Chair. "This is an exciting time in the evolution of Adtalem and for the portfolio of institutions and companies it operates. We are confident these additional directors will provide insightful contributions as Adtalem focuses on its three verticals: medical and healthcare, technology and business, and professional education."

With these changes, the Adtalem Board will be composed of nine Directors, seven of whom are independent. The Board composition now includes three women and four persons of color, demonstrating Adtalem's commitment to Board diversity as a business imperative.

"Ms. Boden Holland brings a wealth of operational and strategic experience to the medical and healthcare vertical. Well-versed in growing businesses organically as well as successfully executing M&A transactions, she will provide the strategic oversight to our portfolio of mission driven medical and healthcare institutions. Ms. Boden Holland will lead a team of experienced professionals and we are eager to see the evolution of this vertical under her direction," said Lisa Wardell, President and Chief Executive Officer of Adtalem Global Education.

Also today, Adtalem announced the planned retirement of Chamberlain University President Susan Groenwald, PhD, RN, ANEF, FAAN. Throughout the last 12 years, Dr. Groenwald has led the evolution of Chamberlain University, leading the institution from one campus to 21 campuses in 15 states, while developing and managing all undergraduate and graduate nursing programs. She established and led the Chamberlain Care culture, which created an environment that embodies excellence in nursing, and was the basis of a book she published last fall. Susan successfully launched master's and doctoral degrees, most recently the master of public health program. Under her leadership, Chamberlain University also achieved distinction as a Center of Excellence by the National League for Nursing. Adtalem is conducting an active search for her successor. Dr. Groenwald will retire once her successor is in place and is committed to ensuring a smooth transition. Dr. Groenwald will continue her affiliation with Adtalem in her role as Trustee for Ross University School of Medicine and Ross University School of Veterinary Medicine, and has also agreed to serve as a senior advisor to Adtalem on a go forward basis.

"Chamberlain University's growth and presence as a leading provider of quality nursing education is a testament to Susan's passion for nursing and dedication to our students," said Wardell. "We sincerely thank her for her market leading and transformational contributions to Chamberlain University and Adtalem Global Education and we know that Chamberlain will continue to reflect her commitment to the success of our students."
