Going to Gemba Day, June 1, 2026

Johnson Controls announced an all-day, in-person Going to Gemba day for investors and sell-side analysts on Monday, June 1, 2026. This immersive event reflects the concept "gemba" – the actual place where value is created – and is designed to illustrate how Johnson Controls' proprietary Business System is changing how the company is run across the enterprise. The event includes site visits to:

- Johnson Controls Advanced Development Engineering Center (JADEC) in Pennsylvania, home of York® and where a 150-year legacy of HVAC and thermal technologies continues to develop what's next – highlighting how the Johnson Controls Business System accelerates new product introduction and speed-to-market;

- Airside Center of Excellence (ACE) manufacturing facility, demonstrating how the Business System drives scalable, high productivity manufacturing; and
- A Baltimore local market office, showcasing how the same Business System drives commercial execution and service delivery in the field, supporting customer outcomes and service-led growth.

Together, these visits illustrate how the proprietary Business System is the way Johnson Controls runs the company – from innovation and manufacturing to frontline commercial and service execution – providing a common language, operating cadence, and set of leadership behaviors to drive a culture of sustainment across the enterprise. The event will showcase Johnson Controls' strategy, innovation, and execution through site tours and discussion with management, including Chief Executive Officer Joakim Weidemanis and Chief Financial Officer Marc Vandiepenbeeck.

In-person attendance will be by invitation only. Select portions of the event will be available via live webcast on the Investor Relations section of Johnson Controls' website at <http://investors.johnsoncontrols.com>, along with related presentation materials. The webcast and materials will also be archived on the Investor Relations section of Johnson Controls' website.
