BlackSky Wins Seven-Figure Subscription Contract with New Government Customer for New and Advanced Gen-2 Mission Applications

2026-05-12

Initial one-year period-of-performance contract expands access to Gen-2 capacity, increasing mission value for customers

HERNDON, Va.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- BlackSky Technology Inc. (NYSE: BKSJ) was awarded a seven-figure subscription contract with a new government customer for new and advanced Gen-2 mission applications. This initial one-year period-of-performance contract expands access to Gen-2 capacity and increases mission value for the customer.

"BlackSky's Gen-2 constellation continues to provide tremendous real-time operational utility to our global customer base with high-cadence, rapid-revisit high resolution imagery and AI-enabled analytics," said Brian O'Toole, BlackSky CEO. "This contract opens the opportunity to extend Gen-2 constellation capacity while supporting mission critical customer needs for innovation."

"As BlackSky successfully integrates additional Gen-3 satellites into our dual constellation framework, Gen-2 remains foundational to our real-time space-based intelligence capabilities, monitoring rapidly unfolding events on Earth and objects on orbit," said O'Toole.

With this agreement, BlackSky is leveraging our advanced, end-to-end architecture to deliver solutions that meet the customer's readiness and operational priorities.

BlackSky's vertically integrated satellite manufacturing and AI-driven software architecture delivers secure, flexible access to data via On-Demand and Assured subscription-based services or full sovereign systems. This full-technology stack ensures customers receive real-time insights exactly when and where they need them most.
