Stock Dividend/Split

Please note that the following does not constitute tax advice and is provided for informational purposes pursuant to the requirements of §6045B Of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "IRC"). The information provided is with respect to the U.S. federal income tax consequences only. The specific tax consequences that may apply to a particular shareholder may vary. Please consult with your tax advisor to determine the appropriate consequences to your shareholdings, including the applicability and effect of all U.S. federal and state tax laws and all foreign tax laws.

14. On September 2, 2026, Amphenol Corporation ("APH") distributed one (1) share of stock for each share of APH stock held. The distribution was made to shareholders of record as of the close of trading on August 17, 2026.

15. As a result of this distribution, the shareholders received one (1) additional share for each share owned. Therefore, the number of shares held by each shareholder doubles, but the shareholder's proportionate ownership interest in APH will remain the same. APH expects that the distribution of stock will be treated as a non-taxable distribution under IRC §305 and stock basis will need to be adjusted as required under IRC §307.

16. Pursuant to the income tax regulations issued under IRC §307, if a shareholder receives stock as a distribution on stock previously held and such distribution is non-taxable under §305, then the shareholder's basis in the stock on which the distribution was made should be allocated between the old stock and the new stock in proportion to the fair market values of each on the date of the distribution. Each shareholder will need to consult with their respective tax advisor to determine the appropriate calculation of tax basis. To calculate the change to basis, the shareholder will need, at a minimum, the number of shares held prior to the distribution, the basis in those shares held immediately prior to the distribution and the number of shares held following the distribution.

17. The applicable sections of the IRC relied upon in providing this information are §305(a) and §307(a).

18. Under the IRC, no gain or loss is expected related to this distribution.

19. The distribution was made on September 2, 2026. For an APH shareholder whose taxable year is the calendar year, the reportable tax year is 2026.
