

An Update on Mainland China and Hong Kong Flying

2/11/2020

Due to the reduction in demand, American Airlines has extended the suspension of flying to and from the mainland China and Hong Kong from our Dallas-Fort Worth (DFW) and Los Angeles (LAX) hubs.

- Flights between DFW/LAX and the mainland China are suspended through April 24.
- Flights between DFW and Hong Kong are suspended through April 23.
- Flights between LAX and Hong Kong are suspended through April 24.

We will continue to evaluate this schedule and make any adjustments as necessary.

Frequently asked questions:

Which airports in mainland China does American serve?

American serves Shanghai Pudong Airport (PVG) and Beijing Capital International Airport (PEK) from our hubs at DFW and LAX. We also serve Hong Kong International Airport (HKG) from DFW and LAX. On average, there is one flight to each city per day from both DFW and LAX for a total of six flights.

When will American run a schedule change and inform customers who were booked on these flights?

On Feb. 16, American will run a formal schedule change, and customers who are booked on impacted flights will see their reservation updated on aa.com. Our teams will contact affected customers directly to accommodate their needs. Customers who booked through a travel agent will be contacted by their agency directly beginning Feb. 16, or customers can reach out to their travel agency.

My flight was canceled and I don't want to rebook. Can I get a refund?

Yes. If a flight is canceled and a customer chooses to not be rebooked, they may request a full refund by visiting aa.com/refunds.
