

Henry Schein and Chooch AI Bring Full-Service AI Inventory Management to Health Systems and Medical Organizations Nationwide

Healthcare Facilities Can Access Chooch's AI-Powered Inventory Detection and Management Platform, Which Can Be Paired with Henry Schein's Complete Supply Chain Services

MELVILLE, NY – October 6, 2026 – Henry Schein, Inc. (Nasdaq: HSIC) and Chooch AI have reached an agreement to collaborate to help health systems, medical offices, and medical labs simplify inventory management, reduce time spent manually tracking supplies, and help ensure the products they need are available when and where they are needed. Chooch's AI-powered inventory management technology is now available as part of Henry Schein's fully managed Supply Chain Services, giving customers access to inventory technology and supply chain support through one comprehensive solution.

Chooch AI is an artificial intelligence (AI) platform that uses advanced large vision models and computer vision technologies, together with advanced AI workflows, processes, and technologies, to monitor inventory levels in real time and automatically trigger timely inventory ordering, fulfillment, and replenishment with minimal human intervention.

"Managing inventory can require health systems to coordinate technology, inventory oversight, and supply fulfillment across multiple providers," said Ty Ford, Vice President and General Manager, Henry Schein U.S. Medical Sales. "By adding Chooch AI's technology platform to our suite of supply chain service offerings, we can deliver a single, accountable solution that manages the process end-to-end, from setup through ongoing supply fulfillment."

With the combination of Henry Schein's fully managed Supply Chain Services and Chooch's platform, health system administrators can now oversee and manage the entire supply acquisition and management process across all locations, removing these manual tasks from their professional and clinical staff's workload.

"By working with Henry Schein, we've helped bridge the gap between data and delivery, driving visibility, efficiency, and control," said Anubhav Saxena, CEO of Chooch AI. "Together, we are ensuring that our customers' products are ordered, fulfilled, and in the right hands, at the right place, at the right time. This way, clinically trained staff can focus on improved patient care and reduced risk."

Chooch's solution is available now through Henry Schein for health systems and medical offices of all sizes. Henry Schein and Chooch AI work together to manage onboarding, enabling organizations to have the solution up and running quickly and efficiently.
