Teachers Can Apply for CenturyLink Technology Grants

2019-10-31

Applications for grants of up to $5,000 will be accepted through Jan. 12, 2020

MONROE, La., Oct. 31, 2019 /PRNewswire/ -- CenturyLink, Inc. (NYSE: CTL) believes in improving lives and connecting communities, and, as part of its commitment to those efforts, has announced that applications are now being accepted for the CenturyLink Clarke M. Williams Foundation's Teachers and Technology grant program. Launched in 2008, the program has awarded more than $11 million in grants. With education at the forefront of the Foundation's focus, the program is designed to help teachers bring technology into their respective classrooms to inspire and motivate students.

To apply, teachers should visit www.centurylink.com/teachersandtechnology and complete an online application before midnight (Eastern) Jan. 12, 2020.

"CenturyLink understands how important it is to provide innovative technology in the classroom, because leading edge technology can make the learning experience for students so much more valuable," said Stephanie Calhoun, CenturyLink vice president of talent management. "It is an honor to help build the future workforce by elevating the ability of our dedicated educators to teach their students science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) concepts in their daily school lives."

Eligibility for grants of up to $5,000 extends to all pre-K through 12th grade teachers in public, private and/or charter schools located in either a CenturyLink residential service area or a corporate location in the United States (Ouachita Parish, La.; Johnson County, Kan.; Tulsa County, Okla. or St. Louis County, Mo.).
